Definition

“Bribe” means property or other benefits given to a person to induce that person to do an action. Or refrain from performing any action in the position, whether it is legal or illegal, as desired by the person paying the bribe, including accepting gifts, facilitation fees, tokens of goodwill, accepting donations, receiving entertainment, and benefits of a similar nature, when there is an offer, giving, or receiving that can be considered. It is reasonable to say that it is a bribe and includes giving or receiving it later (receiving a gift from performing a duty is different from receiving it ethically, which means receiving property or other benefits that can be calculated as money from a person who gives it on an occasion, festival or important day. Therefore, receiving a gift, present or gratuity from performing a duty may be receiving a bribe).

“Performance of duties” means an action or performance of duties by a government official in a position to which he or she has been appointed or assigned to perform a particular duty or to act in a position to perform a particular duty, both general and specific, as a police officer for whom the law has prescribed the powers and duties, or an action in accordance with the powers and duties specified by law to be the powers and duties of the police.

Measures to protect complainants/informants/witnesses and maintain confidentiality

1. Consideration of complaints shall specify the level of confidentiality and protect the relevant persons according to the regulations on the preservation of official secrets B.E. 2544. In sending the case to the agency for consideration, the informant and the complainant may suffer. For example, complaints against civil servants shall initially be considered as official secrets. If it is a secret card, only cases that clearly state evidence, circumstances, and witnesses shall be considered. The reporting of information on influential persons shall conceal the name and address of the complainant. If the name and address of the complainant are not concealed, the relevant agency shall be notified and the complainant shall be protected as follows: "The commanding officer shall exercise discretion and order as appropriate to protect the complainant, witnesses, and persons who provide information for the investigation. Do not allow yourself to suffer harm or injustice that may arise from filing a complaint, being a witness or providing such information." In cases where the accused is named, both the complainant and the accused must be protected, as the matter has not yet gone through the fact-finding process and may be a harassment accusation that causes distress and damage. In cases where the complainant specifies in the petition to conceal or does not wish to disclose the complainant's name, the agency must not disclose the complainant's name to the accused agency, as the complainant may suffer distress as a result. of that complaint

Informing influential persons must conceal the name and address of the complainant. If the name and address of the complainant are not concealed, the relevant agency must be informed and the complainant must be protected as follows: "The commanding officer must exercise discretion and order appropriately to protect the complainant, witnesses, and persons who provide information in the investigation, so that they do not suffer harm or injustice that may arise from the complaint, being a witness, or providing such information." In the case where the accused person's name is specified, both the complainant and the accused must be protected because this matter has not yet gone through the fact-finding process and may be a harassment accusation that causes distress and damage. In the case where the complainant states in the request to conceal or does not wish to disclose the complainant's name, the agency must not disclose the complainant's name to the complaining agency because the complainant may suffer distress as a result of the complaint. Etc.

2. When a complaint is filed , the complainant and witnesses will not be subject to any action. Any action that affects work or life, if any action is necessary For example, segregation of work places to prevent the complainant, witnesses and accused from meeting each other, etc., must be agreed upon by the complainant and witnesses.

3. Requests from the injured party , petitioner or witness, such as requests to change workplaces or methods to prevent or solve problems, should be considered by the responsible person or agency as appropriate.

4. Provide protection to complainants from being harassed.

Measures to protect the accused

1. During the consideration of the complaint, the accused is not yet considered guilty. They must be treated fairly and treated the same as other people.

2. Give the accused an opportunity to fully explain the allegations, including the right to present documentary evidence.
